Mozart's Dedication to Haydn

Al mio caro amico Haydn,

Un padre, avendo risolto di mandare i suoi figli nel gran Mondo, stimó doverli affidare alla protezione e condotta d'un Uomo celebre in allora, il quale per buona sorte, era di più il suo migliore Amico. Eccoti dunque del pari, Uomo celebre, ed Amico mio carissimo i sei miei figli. Essi sono, è vero, il frutto di una lunga, e laboriosa fatica, pur la speranza fattami da più Amici di vederla almeno in parte compensata, m'incoraggisce, e mi lusinga, che queste parti siano per essermi un giorno di qualche consolazione. Tu stesso Amico carissimo, nell'ultimo tuo Soggiorno in questa Capitale, me ne dimostrasti la tua soddisfazione. Questo tuo suffragio mi anima sopra tutto, perché Jo te li raccomandi, e mi fa sperare, che non ti sembreranno del tutto indegni del tuo favore. Piacciati dunque accoglierli benignamente: ed essere loro Padre, Guida ed Amico! Da questo momento Jo ti cedo i miei diritti sopra di essi: ti supplico però di guardare con indulgenza i difetti, che l'occhio parziale di Padre mi può aver celati, e di continuare loro malgrado, la generosa tua Amicizia a chi tanto l'apprezza, mentre sono di tutto Cuore,
Il tuo Sincerissimo Amico W. A. M.
Vienna il p.mo Settembre 1785.

English translation:[1]

To my dear friend Haydn,

A father, having decided to send his sons to the great World, settled to entrust them to the protection and conduct of a famous Man of that time, who luckily was also his best Friend. In the same way, oh most celebrated Man and my very dearest Friend, here are my six sons. They are truly the fruit of a long and hard effort, yet the hope, supported by many Friends, to see it at least partly rewarded has given me courage, and I should be happy if these will someday be a consolation to me. You yourself, dearest Friend, during your last Visit to this Capital, expressed your satisfaction. Your support incites me strongly to recommend them to you, and lets me hope that you will not think them completely unworthy of your favour. Do accept them benevolently: and be their Father, Guide and Friend! From this moment I give you my rights over them: but I pray that you look with indulgence to their blemishes, which the partial eye of a Father might have overlooked, and to continue, in spite of them, this generous friendship which they value so highly, while I remain, with all my Heart,
Your Most Sincere Friend W. A. M.
Vienna, 1st September 1785.

Notes

In this appendix I report errors and incongruences I found in the source text used to prepare this book: the Breitkopf & Härtel edition, 1882 (from now on, B&H). I do not own another edition, so in the cases where the B&H edition had some oddities, I referred to the Philips recordings of these quartets made by Quartetto Italiano in 1966. By the way, I recommend these beautiful recordings to every music lover.

String Quartet KV. 387

Allegro Vivace Assai, bars 103-104. The tie in bar 104 starts from the D in bar 103 (thus being a slur).

This seems to be a typing mistake, since bar 105 has a tie. Moreover, a slur would not match the Violin II and Cello parts.

Andante Cantabile, bar 14. The Violin I part has a blank space instead of the eighth rest.

Andante Cantabile, bars 49-51. In every instrument the last note is a sixteenth; this is of course an error, since the duration of every bar would be $3/4 + 1/32$. For example, the Violin I part is written in the following manner:

I chose to change sixteenth notes into thirty-second notes because it is the same solution adopted by Quartetto Italiano, but of course there is the possibility that the error is in the dotted rests.

Molto Allegro, bar 80. The B&H text reports the possibility that the cello part has a natural D instead of a D sharp. In the same way, it reports that in bar 85 the second note (C) might be a C sharp.

Molto Allegro, bar 205. The cello has a blank space instead of the G.

String Quartet KV. 421

No significant errors were found in the B&H edition.

String Quartet KV. 428

No significant errors were found in the B&H edition.

String Quartet KV. 458

Allegro vivace assai, bar 27. The B&H text reports a G in the viola part, but it is probably a mistake (see bar 163).

Allegro vivace assai, bar 155. This bar is not present in the B&H score. It is without doubt a mistake, since none of the slurs that begin in bar 154 is properly closed.

Adagio, bar 16. The last note of the viola has not the natural sign before it. A C flat would be strange because of the dissonance with the C in the Violin I part.

String Quartet KV. 464

In general, the B&H edition is not very coherent in marking the tuplet numbers. When reorganizing them, I chose not to note every change to the source text here in order not to over-lengthen these notes.

The B&H score uses no tremolo marks at all. I used some of them to save print (especially in the cello part).

Andante, bar 104. The Violin II part has an ambiguous C sharp instead of E. This is strange since there is no cautionary accidental before the note (the previous and following bars both have natural C):

The E was suggested by the Philips recording. This is a good solution since it matches bar 95, Violin I part.

String Quartet KV. 465

Cautionary alterations were not reported coherently in this quartet (where alterations have such a great importance!). I added some of these to each movement (not reported in these notes).

Tremolo marks are present in the B&H score only with sixteenth notes (e.g. bars 238-255, fourth movement). I added some tremoli of eighth notes to the first two movements in order to conserve some space on the page (e.g. opening bars, cello part).

Adagio - Allegro, bar 187. The Violin I part of the B&H score is the following:

The second G sharp is probably a printing mistake. I converted it into a F, in order to match bar 67.
